Without any of the predicted disturbance

-without even an ordinary uproar-

Flemon, or Yeldell, was last night conveyed from the Central station to the Baltimore and Ohio depot and there safely shipped on board a south-bound train. The day selected was a good one, as the great bulk of the colored people had been celebrating the an-tion, and very few had returned to town

n time to witness the departure of their six weeks' hero. Yeldell spent the day in the Central police station, eading the Bible, and nerving himself for the great strain which is before him; having been previously and quietly transferred from the jail. He was thoroughly reconciled to his departure, and expressed a hope that his colored brethren would create no useless disturbance by riotous conduct or attempted rescue, which, as he himself said, would only prejudice the public against hustled into the outer office and thence to the street. A drunken woman being brought in jostled Yeldell as he passed, and the po-lite minister took off his hat with his free hand and begged her pardon. In a few seconds more the prisoner and Officer Fitz-gerald were safely seated in the wagon.

Subsequent events proved their mistake, for the wagon dashed down to Sixth avenue and wheeled suddenly up Wood street, in the direction of the river. A howl of anger went up from the crowd, and instantly every face was turned riverward and every nerve strained to reach the Baltimore and Ohio

RIOT WAS EVADED.

Had the mob in the streets reached the depot in time and mixed with the crowd already there, a riot must of necessity have ensued. As it was, everything went off most quietly, and the rare tact of the police was conspicuously displayed.

A few minutes previous to the arrival at

A few minutes previous to the arrival at the depot, by a preconcerted measure the electric lights on the platform of the depot were extinguished, and but for those shining in the waiting rooms the place would have been in utter darkness. As soon as it became known that the wagon had arrived, a rush was made for the barrier, so as to get a look at the now notorious Yeldeli, but the depot officials, aided by the officers, quietly eleared a lane, and the prisoner.

depot officials, aided by the officers, quietly cleared a lane, and the prisoner, still linked to Paddy Fitzgerald, and followed by the officers and newspaper men, was ushered through the gate and escorted to a seat in the foremost car of the six. As Yeldell settled down, guarded on one side by Fitzgerald and on the other by Bob Dennison (both of whom go on to the State line with him), and followed by Inspector McAleese, Roger O'Mara, the South Carolinians, Jack McTighe, Sol Coulson and other special officers,

THEY DIDN'T KNOW HIM.

THEY DIDN'T KNOW HIM.

But very few of the passengers seemed to know of the celebrity whom they were to have as a traveling companion. Arrived at the foremost car, which contained but few passengers, Yeldell was led to a seat and handcuffed to its arm by Roger O'Mara, who then affixed the shackles to his feet. The deputies seated themselves in the seat behind and had a levee of about five minutes' duration, during which handshakes were exchanged with the acquaintances among the officers and newspaper men, and hopes tendered them of an pleasant a journey as could be wished for under the circumstances. Yeldell at this point bade good-by to an intelligent colored man who came there to see him off, telling him not to forget to write to a certain address. His friend assured him of his compliance with his wish, and raising his hand aloft, cried out:

"May the God of Isaac and Abraham see you safely home, and send you better luck in Carolina than you had in Pennsylvania."

Yeldell bore himself throughout with a coolness almost bordering on indifference, and smilled in response to some remarks that were made anent his journey. A few moments more and the conductor came along.
"All aboardi" rang out from the brakemen, and at 9:20, sharp on time, the Southern express pulled out for South Carolina. So fell the curtain on the first scene of this now famous extradition case.

press pulled out for South Carolina. So feil the curtain on the first scene of this now famous extradition case.

Yeldell, before going, said he had nearly as many friends in South Carolina as he had in Pittsburg. He spoke gratefully of the efforts made by Pittsburg colored men to secure his acquittal. Questioned about the killing of Blackwell, he refused to give any information. All the false reports which had appeared in print about that affair would, he said, be contradicted at the proper time.

The most interesting part of the programme, and an exhibition which has never before been performed in this part of the country, was a burlesque game of tennis. The two sets were composed of four gentlemen arrayed in the most grotesque of ladies' dresses. Their capers and antics created a great deal of laughter. Messrs. George C. Whitesell and Charles L. In some mills there are men receiving as high as $7,000 and $8,000 per year. They are supposed to do manual labor, but by the introduction of new machinery their labor is cut down almost to nothing. If the board of arbitration was in existence these men would be cit down to about $3,000 per year, and the difference given to the poor laboring hands who now receive less than $1.50 per day.

Laws should be passed making it compulsory to refer all chese labor questions to the board and their decision must settle the matter. Any violation or non-acceptance of their decision upon the part of both employer and employe would be made a penal offense. If an employe is not satisfied with the way the case is settled, then he has no alternative but to quit and go elsewhere. I think this would be far better than to organize a strike by which both sides lose time and money they never regain. The scheme works all right in New York State and there is no reason why it should not work here. "Did he call on you?" "No," said the Senator, "he didn't." "May I inquire where you saw him?"

"I don't care to talk polities to-day," returned Mr. Quay, with a pleasant smile. The reportorial intrusion on Mr. Quay was a surprise to that gentleman. The clerks in the office stated in their official capacities that the statesman from Beaver wasn't in. But he was, nevertheless, and James S. The men at a large number of the works, notably those of McClure & Co., are hesitating whether tacome out or not.

A big meeting was held at New Haven this afternoon. It was addressed by Secretary Watchorn, John Costello and others, Julius Sydow addressed the Siavonic element. To-night the same speakers addressed a large meeting at Trotters, At a meeting of the National Progressive Union held at these works on Tuesday evening, the action of the Knights of Labor in declaring the strike was vigorously condemned, and they unanimously declined to continue work. The meeting to-night has had a reactionary effect, and it is probable that they will join the force of strikers in the morning. Meetings were also held at Southwest No. 1, Mayfield and Donneilly to-night. These works are in the double-full column, and it is expected they too will come out in the morning. The labor organizations are divided on the position the National Progressive Union has developed against the efforts of the Knights, not only preclude the possibility of the strike becoming general, but will doubtless bring it to an early termination.

Captain Jones Wants a Board of Arbitration

-How They Are to Work-English Capi-

Captain William R. Jones, General Manager of the Edgar Thomson Steel Works,

eft last evening for Milwaukee, Wis., t purchase several engines for use at the Braddock mills. While at the Union station waiting for the limited express, the Captain dropped out of his usual taciturn nood and unburdened his mind of a num-dustrial world at present. In speaking of the strikes and lockouts among the iron workers, he suggested a plan which he claimed would prevent any further strug-gles of this kind between capital and labor. The Captain said:

THE N. P. U. DENOUNCE THE STRIKE

AS CHEME TO PREVENT LABORTROUBLES

The beginning of the cokers' strike in the Connellsville region materialized yesterday, as per programme, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon about 2,500 men were out. Over 2,000 of these were Frick men, who, it is claimed, had signed a scale with their employer, to run until January 31, 1890. The strike was not as extensive as some of the labor leaders expected. The mass meeting at Connelisville, however, drew an enthusiastic crowd. This had the effect of retting quite a number of men to lay down their tools. At several works committees of strikers tried to get men to join them; but, in the majority of cases, were unsuccessful. The operators were jubilant last evening, seeing the majority of their men refused to go out. They claimed the strike was a fizzle, the total number of men out was less than one-fifth of those in the region.

The Captain said:

My idea of preventing strikes, which always prove disastrous to both the employer and employes, is to have a board of arbitration in this State, something similar to the one now in existence in New York State. I would like to see the board composed of five men, composed of such as form the judiciary of the State. Whenever a crowd of employes become disastisfied with their wages or treatment and cannot settle the matter satisfactorily with their employers, they must refer it to the board. The latter will be clothed with the authority to inspect the books of the employer, and if it is a question of wages, let them decide what is fair and equitable. In a large manufacturing establishment this could be done very easily. Say for instance that the employer be allowed 10 per cent profit on what he turns out or has invested in his plant. They would also take into consideration what skill is required to do a certain class of work and base the wages accordingly. In some mills there are men receiving as high as $7.000 and LIST OF THOSE IDLE AND BUSY. The following are the names of the mines where the men struck. This report was furnished by the operators, who received their information from their superintendents on the ground:

At the works of the Frick Company in the At the works of the Frick Company in the Bradford district, about 2,000 men struck. This will throw idle about the same number of ovens. The 200 men at the Buckeye Works, owned by the Connellsville Company, also went out. The same number were employed at the Central Connellsville Works, which is jointly owned by Messrs. Frick, Schoonmaker and McClure. The tollowing works were reported to be running full time:

The Standard, owned by Frick & Co., 1,000 men; the works of McClure & Co., 1,500 men, and Schoonmaker, 1,500; the Mammoth, owned by J. W. Moore, 550 men; United, owned by the United Coal and Coke Company, 225 men; Hecla, at Hecla station, 300 men; Mutual, 200 men; Calumet, 200 men. All of the mines on the Sewickley branch road are also reported to be running without a break. At a number of the works where the men scheme works all right in New York State and there is no reason why it should not work here. Speaking of the general outlook for railroad building, based on orders the company has received for rails, the Captain called the prospects very bright. The many recent failures of mercantile interests, he said, caused a very shaky condition of affairs, and if so many failures had occurred within the same time 15 years ago they would have caused a panic. were on strike it was reported that the su-perintendents tried to secure a number of Hungarians to take the places of the strikers, but that they refused. MR. FRICK IS ASTOUNDED.

MR. FRICK IS ASTOUNDED.

H. C. Frick, when seen by a DISPATCH reporter yesterday, said: "I am utterly surprised that our men should go on a strike in the face of the agreement we made with them. The contract binds them to work at the price agreed to—85 cents—until the scale expires. This is the first time I ever knew an agreement of this kind to be violated by any class of workingmen. So far the strike has not been a success, and I do not anticipate that any more men will go out." Incidents of a Day in Two Cities Condensed for Rendy Reading.

A SOUTHSIDE German was fined by Judge Brokaw, and Sergeant McCleary went home with the man to get his fine. The prisoner took a key from the door and unlocked a cabinet and took a key from it. Both were used to open a trunk. In the bottom of the trunk was a key which unlocked another trunk. In the bottom of the last under a pile of clothing was a dinner bucket with a tray in it, and under the tray was a large sum in notes. The money was well hidden.

"Will the number of men out have any effect on the market? Will there be enough men working to supply the demand for coke?" Mr. Frick was asked.

"There certainly will be enough to easily meet the demand for the product. The number of meu out represents a little more than one-sixth of those in the region. At present there is a large surplus stock of coke on the market, and even if we did not have enough men to make enough to fill orders, this stock would last us quite a while."

PROM THE SEAT OF WAR. The following special telegram from Scott-dale last evening brought additional details of the strike:

The strike in this region is now an assured fact, and while not as many of the works are idle as was expected, there are enough to make the men reasonably certain of success in the end. The following works are reported out:

Charlotte, Clinton, Davidson, Eagle Foundry, Frick, Henry Clay, Morgan, Summit, Tiptop, Valley and White, of the H. C. Frick Coke Company: Buckeye, of A. C. Cochraft Coke Company: Buckeye, of J. R. Stanffer & Co.; Franklin, of the Central Connellsville Coke Company: Dexter, of J. R. Stanffer & Co.; Franklin, of H. F. Kelster & Co.; Hone, of Stauffer & Wiley: Lemont, of Robert Hogsett; Southwest, of the Southwest Coal and Coke Company: Stewart, of the Stewart Iron Company: Tyrone, of Laughlin & Co.; Uniondale, of Reid Bros.; Wheeler, of Cambria Iron Company: Youngstown, of J. M. Schoonmaker Coke Company;

Reports have been received to the effect that Donnelly, Mayfield and Enterprise works, of the McClure Coke Company, would be idle to-morrow or Saturday. It is also claimed that the men at the Jintown works of the Schoonmaker Coke Company will come out to-morrow.

pression that that was the proper place to register as pharmacists. They were all instructed that the State Board of Pharmacy was the place to apply. To-day is the last day. maker Coke Company will come out to-morrow.

One of the most peculiar features of the strike is that while all the employes of the Frick Company, except those at the Standard works, came cut without paying any attention to the provision of the Frick scale, a Standard man said to-day that at a meeting of the men at that place last night it was decided to give the company the notice required. A prominent striker said that the reason for this was that nearly all the men at Standard were members of the National Progressive Union, and that they had been advised by President Davis to give the notice. CONTRARY to expectation, the new broom in-dustry at the Riverside Penitentiary was not several defects in the arrangements. It is very likely, however, that either to-day or to-morrow a trial will be made. HENRY STENKEL was exonerated by Alderman Foley yesterday of the charge of assault and battery preferred by Elizabeth Webbe. Mr. Stenkel was not out skiff-riding with the woman, and he claims that, under just provocation, he shoved her off his boathouse.

The following was recaived at 1 o'clock this morning from Connellsville:

It is held that to carry $400 worth of clothing a wagon would be needed, and the police on the beat say they didn't see any.
